

HighJump Software Named a Top Technology Solution Provider to the Food Industry on Food Logistics 100

February 2, 2010

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--HighJump Software, a global provider of supply chain execution solutions, was named to the annual Food Logistics 100. The FL100 is a listing of technology solution and service providers selected by the editorial staff of Food Logistics magazine that are helping food, beverage and CPG companies gain a competitive logistical advantage.

“HighJump Software empowers food manufacturers, distributors and retailers to tackle a number of critical challenges, including increasingly complex regulations, rising costs and slim margins,” said Timothy Campbell, President and CEO, HighJump Software. “We’re honored to have been recognized by Food Logistics once again as a technology provider of choice for the food industry.”

HighJump Software supports key food and beverage requirements with powerful inventory management capabilities and real-time visibility to critical information from raw material suppliers to the retail store shelf. The HighJump Supply Chain Advantage suite helps food companies meet stringent requirements for quality, safety and traceability while driving cost reduction and client satisfaction. HighJump Software helps over 600 food and beverage customers manage their supply chains.
